THE PRICE OF SILENCE

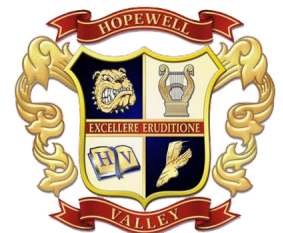

The Forgotten Story of New Jersey's Enslaved People

New Jersey, the Garden State, is known for its produce, but not for the enslaved people who tilled the soil. In this two-part PBS documentary, descendants and historians tell their stories and why it was the last northern state to end the institution of slavery. Part one offers an overview of the state's history of enslaved people and shared poignant family stories of its earliest freed slaves. In episode two, we look at the Lost Souls Project, which is working to remember and identify African Americans who were forcibly removed from New Jersey and taken to Louisiana and explore the lasting impact of slavery in the state. The book "If These Stones Could Talk" was Ridgeley Hutchinson's inspiration for making the film.

We are very excited to be working with Dr. Rosetta Treece and Hopewell Valley Regional School District for our next screening at their Performing Arts Center. Most of our cast and film crew will be in attendance and the event will be free to the public.
